INTRODUCTION

The Bureau of the Mint, established in the Department of the Treasury on February 12, 1873 (17 Stat. 424), succeeded the Mint of the United States, which had been founded at Philadelphia in 1792 (1 Stat. 246) and had continued to function there after the seat of the Government was transferred in 1800 to Washington. Although the Philadelphia Mint was nominally an independent agency, beginning in 1835 the Secretary of the Treasury had general supervision over its coinage operations. Not until 1857, however, was the Mint Director legally required to submit his annual report to the Secretary.

Before the Bureau of the Mint was created the branch mints and assay offices were under the supervision of the Director of the Mint of the United States at Philadelphia. When the Bureau was established its Director was made responsible for the supervision of all mints, and each mint was to be headed by a superintendent. The mints at Charlotte, N.C., Dahlonega, Ga., New Orleans, La., and Carson City, Nev., and the assay offices at Boise, Idaho, Helena, Mont., St. Louis, Mo., Deadwood, S. Dak., Salt Lake City, Utah, and Seattle Wash., have been discontinued. Now in operation are the mints at Philadelphia, Denver, and San Francisco; an assay office at New York City; a gold bullion depository at Fort Knox, Ky.; and a silver bullion depository at West Point, N.Y.

The Bureau has the responsibility for manufacturing domestic and foreign coins and acquiring metals for coinage purposes; for producing medals of a national character; for receiving, storing, and selling gold and silver bullion; for assaying; and for refining. The Director administers regulations issued under the Gold Reserve Act of 1934 and section 5(b) of the Trading With the Enemy Act of October 6, 1917, as amended, and regulations concerning newly mined domestic silver. The Director is also required to make annual estimates of the value of foreign coins; to collect statistics on the production of gold and silver in the United States; and to report the proceedings of the Annual Assay Commission, which originated under the act of 1792 establishing the Mint of the United States and also requiring annual inspections of coins by designated public officials.

This inventory describes all the records in Record Group 104, Records of the Bureau of the Mint, that were in the National Archives on January 22, 1967. They amount to 528 cubic feet and are dated from 1792 to 1842. This inventory includes a revision of National Archives Preliminary Inventory No. 40, Records of the United States Mint at Philadelphia, compiled by Lyle J. Holverstott and Jean McNiece and published in 1952. The records are arranged in four groups as follows: (1) records of the Philadelphia Mint, which served for a long period as the headquarters office;

(2) records of the Office of the Secretary of the Treasury relating to the supervision of the Mint Service before the establishment of the Bureau; (3) central records of the Bureau of the Mint; and (4) records of the closed branch mints and assay offices (except Dahlonega, for which the National Archives has no information concerning any extant records).

Closely related records in the National Archives are (1) applications for employment in the Mint Service and personnel action documents and related correspondence, 1833-1910, in Record Group 56, Records of the Department of the Treasury; (2) surety bonds of accountable officers of the Mint Service, 1792-1925, in Record Group 39, Records of the Bureau of Accounts (Treasury); and (3) fiscal accounts of accountable officers, 1792-1894, and some related correspondence, in Record Group 217, Records of the United States General Accounting Office.

Records not in the National Archives include (1) continuations of the records transferred, gold and silver policy files, records relating to lend-lease activities during World War II, bullion accounts current, special gold assay reports, and regulations concerning operational activities, all of which have been retained by the Bureau; (2) records, to 1945, of the field institutions still in operation, which are in the Federal Records Centers; and (3) personnel records for separated employees of the Mint Service, which are in the National Personnel Records Center, St. Louis, Mo.

Most of the entries for that part of the inventory relating to the Mint of the United States at Philadelphia as well as entries in other parts of the inventory were prepared by Lyle J. Holverstott.

RECORDS OF THE UNITED STATES MINT AT PHILADELPHIA, 1791-1936

The Mint of the United States was established at Philadelphia by an act of Congress approved on April 2, 1792 (1 Stat. 246). It was under the supervision of a Director appointed by the President. When the seat of Government moved to Washington in 1800, the mint remained in Philadelphia. In the early years of operation the Director of the Mint sent his annual reports to the Secretary of State for transmittal to the President, but the Secretary of State gradually was relieved of responsibility for the supervision of the mint and the Secretary of the Treasury assumed control. By 1835 the supervision of the Secretary of the Treasury over coinage and related operations was complete. Annual reports, however, continued to be made to the President until 1857. Since that date the reports have been made to the Secretary of the Treasury.

Branch mints at Charlotte, N.C., Dahlonega, Ga., and New Orleans, La., were authorized by an act of March 3, 1835. The Director of the Mint at Philadelphia, or of the United States Mint as it was usually called, was given supervision over the branch mints. He continued to direct activities at those mints and at assay offices and branch mints later authorized until the Bureau of the Mint was established in the Treasury Department on April 1, 1873. The head of the Bureau was appointed Director of the Mint, and he had control over all mints and assay offices. The Philadelphia Mint, under a Superintendent, became one of the several field institutions of the Bureau.

The primary functions of the Philadelphia Mint remained unchanged by the establishment of the Bureau. These functions included coinage; the assaying of ores, bullion, and coins; the purchase of bullion; and the melting, refining, and casting of precious metals into bars or ingots. Some special functions that had been performed only at the Philadelphia Mint also remained unchanged. These functions included the engraving of coinage dies; the manufacture of minor coins (bronze and copper-nickel alloys), medals, and working dies (those made from the originals); the recoinage of abraded coins; the manufacture of mechanical apparatus, such as coinage presses and scales, and of certain supplies; and the collecting of "specimen" coins to add to the collection in the Cabinet Room of gold, silver, and baser metal coins of different countries. The annual assay or trial of coins that had taken place each year at the Philadelphia Mint also continued to be performed there. Throughout the existence of the subtreasury system (1846-1920) the Philadelphia Mint also functioned as a depository of public moneys.

By an act of January 29, 1874, the execution of coinage for foreign governments was performed at the Philadelphia Mint and, later on, at the San Francisco and Denver Mints as well.

The records of the United States Mint at Philadelphia, which are described in this inventory, relate to the general superintendence of the entire Mint Service until early in 1873 and to coinage, assaying, and other operations of the Philadelphia Mint from 1794, when coinage was begun, to the early 1900's. There are three kinds of records: correspondence, operating records, and housekeeping records. A few records have been retained by the mint, on a loan basis, for display purposes. Most of these display items (about 30) are letters received or drafts of replies sent during the period 1793-1862. Others include a warrant book, 1793-1817; a journal, 1794-1826; a blotter of receipts and expenditures, 1794-96; and letter books (2 volumes), 1795-1831. In the entries of the Bureau as a whole, cross-references are usually given to closely related records.

Correspondence, 1792-1904

GENERAL CORRESPONDENCE. 1792-1899. 75 ft. 1

This series, with the exception of 10 framed documents (described below), was assembled during a Works Progress Administration (WPA) project in the late 1930's. Parts of several separate series of letters were brought together, flattened, repaired, and filed in chronological order. Other parts of the original series formed other new series, such as the one described in entry 3. The correspondence consists of letters received from private persons and Government officials and of drafts or press copies of letters sent in reply. The correspondence dated before 1873, when the Bureau of the Mint was established, relates to the general superintendence of the Mint Service; the correspondence dated after 1873 relates only to operations at the Philadelphia Mint. Interspersed among the letters of the early period are vouchers, receipts, drafts, and orders for coins. The letters received for the early years, bearing file numbers on the reverse side, were recorded in a register that is described in entry 209. Some of the letters described in entry 2 are closely related. The correspondence is arranged chronologically.

Included are five envelopes containing letters selected by WPA personnel because of their intrinsic value. One envelope contains a manuscript account of coinage in Great Britain, which is entitled "An Account of Gold & Silver Monies Coyned Since the 20th Day of July 1660"; the latest date in this account is 1755, and a notation in the front of the manuscript indi[illegible] it was purchased by Mint Director J. R. Snowden for the Mint Library. Typewritten lists of the contents of each envelope are available in the National Archives.

In this series there are also microfilm copies of two volumes of fair copies of letters sent by the Director of the Mint, 1795-1824, the originals of which are at the Philadelphia Mint.

The 10 framed documents, mentioned in the first paragraph of this entry, include a copy of a Resolution of Congress relating to the establishment of the mint, dated March 3, 1791, and several documents of the 1820's relating to the procurement of a duplicate of the Imperial Standard Troy Pound of Great Britain (such as letters of Albert Gallatin, who was American Minister at London, and a statement of October 13, 1827, signed by President John Quincy Adams).

"BOULTON CORRESPONDENCE." 1796-1838. 6 in. 2

Chiefly letters from and drafts of replies to Mathew R. Boulton of the Boulton Mint, a private institution in England, which supplied the United States Mint with copper. The letters dated after 1808 are signed "M. Robinson Boulton." Included are a letter of January 1, 1843, from the agent of the Soho Mint (the Boulton Mint) to the Director of the Philadelphia Mint relating to mint operations after the death of Mr. Boulton, and a report of May 15, 1863, from the Philadelphia assayers regarding the use of silver tokens for currency and referring to the Boulton Mint. Originally this series was a part of the correspondence described in entry 1. The correspondence is arranged chronologically. For copies of other letters sent to Mr. Boulton, see entry 3.

MISCELLANEOUS LETTERS RECEIVED. 1898-99. 2 ft. 5

These letters were received from private persons and relate chiefly to supplies and equipment or to requests for information. Although the letters are numbered, they are arranged alphabetically by name of writer. The letters sent by persons whose surnames began with A, C-E, I, N-Q, and S are missing. The registers of miscellaneous letters received, 1862-99, described in entry 8, serve as finding aids for these letters.

Press copies of letters sent to the Treasury Department, other Government agencies, branch mints and assay offices, banks, and (until 1879) private persons. The letters dated before April 1873 are signed by the Director of the Mint; they are signed thereafter by the Superintendent. Most of the letters relate to operations at the Philadelphia Mint and at field institutions or to the mint's policies, personnel, and equipment. The volumes from 1879 to 1900 are individually indexed, with "O" for "Official" on the backstrips. Arranged chronologically. For registers of some of these letters (1879-99), see entry 7. For earlier letters sent, see entry 3. For miscellaneous letters sent, see entry 9.

REGISTERS OF OFFICIAL CORRESPONDENCE. Mar. 1879-Dec. 1899. 8 vols. 1 ft. 7

The entries are arranged by name of office or official to whom the letter was sent and thereunder chronologically.

REGISTERS OF CORRESPONDENCE. 1844-1900. 49 vols. 7 ft. 8

The registers contain abstracts of some of the correspondence described in entries 1, 4, 5, and 11. From 1844 through March 1879 the entries in the registers are arranged chronologically. After April 1879 entries for the letters received are arranged alphabetically by name of writer and entries for the letters sent are arranged by name of addressee.

The correspondence relates chiefly to operations in the field, but it includes a few letters concerning the construction of buildings used as branch mints and assay offices. A few letters at the end of the series are labeled "Various" and are arranged chronologically. The registers described in entry 8 contain abstracts of the letters in this series for the period 1844-98. For descriptions of letters sent to branch mints and assay offices, see entries 6 and 12.

Press copies of letters relating chiefly to operations of the Coining and Medal Department, of which the Coiner was in charge, but including some letters relating to personnel matters. Arranged chronologically.

LETTERS SENT BY THE ASSAYER. 1894-95, 1904. 1 vol. 1 in. 18

Fair and press copies of letters sent by James Rush (and his successors) to the Director of the Mint, the Treasurer of the United States and other Treasury Department officials, insurance companies, banks, and private persons. The letters relate chiefly to fiscal operations of the mint. Arranged chronologically. In two of the volumes (from 1816 to 1845) there are a few letters received from the Director of the Mint; these volumes are known as the "James Rush letters." For an index to some of the letters, see entry 21.

LETTERS RECEIVED BY THE TREASURER OF THE MINT. Feb. 1850-May 1853. 5 vols. 10 in. 20

Letters from private persons, banks, and business firms relating to the operation of the Treasurer's office. Arranged chronologically. Letters in some of the volumes are indexed. A few of the letters are indexed in the second volume described in entry 21.

INDEX TO THE TREASURER'S CORRESPONDENCE. Sept. 1841-June 1850. 2 vols. 2 in. 21

The volume for September 1841-June 1848 is an index to some of the letters described in entry 19 and the volume for July 1848-June 1850 is an index to a few of the letters described in entry 20. The latter volume includes briefs of letters missing from series 19. Arranged chronologically.

CORRESPONDENCE CONCERNING THE SALE OF COPPER PLANCHETS. 1849-50. 1 vol. 2 in. 22

Letters received and fair copies of letters sent by the Treasurer of the Mint to firms and private persons, which relate chiefly to the manufacture and sale of copper planchets (disks ready to be stamped as coins). Arranged chronologically and indexed at the beginning of the volume.

"PEALE CORRESPONDENCE." 1829-86. 6 in. 23

Chiefly letters from and draft replies to Franklin Peale, who was variously Chief Coiner of the United States Mint, Assistant Assayer, Melter and Refiner, and an inventor of machinery used in the Mint Service. Included are reports of Peale's visits in the 1830's to certain European cities to study coining operations; a few letters signed by Rubens and Titian Peale; papers relating to Franklin Peale's claim for compensation for some of his inventions that were used by the mint; and a few letters from his widow. Like the "Boulton correspondence" described in entry 2, this series appears to have been formed from some of the correspondence described in entry 1. Arranged chronologically.

CORRESPONDENCE OF F. C. BOOTH, MELTER AND REFINER. Apr. 1877-May 1879. 2 vols. 2 in. 24

Chiefly incoming letters, with some press copies of replies, from the Superintendent of the Mint relating to the operations of the Melting and Refining Department of the Philadelphia Mint. A press copy (illegible in part) of a report on mint activities, apparently made in the 1850's, is in the first part of the first volume. There is a possibility that this document and a Snowden letter that is with it should be placed in the material described in entry 1. The correspondence is arranged chronologically.

Operating Records, 1794-1923

Records of the Annual Assay Commissions, 1817-73

The act of April 2, 1792, that established the United States Mint also authorized the Chief Justice of the United States, the Secretary and the Comptroller of the Treasury, the Secretary of State, and the Attorney General of the United States to make an annual inspection of coins executed at the mint. The annual inspection of coins, however, was delegated in 1801 to the district judge of Pennsylvania, the United States attorney for the District of Pennsylvania, and the Commission of Loans for the State of Pennsylvania. An act of January 18, 1837, also authorized the President to designate such other persons as he might choose to witness the "annual trial." The act of February 12, 1873, establishing the Bureau of the Mint, continued the annual assay "to secure a due conformity in the gold and silver coins to their respective standards of fineness and weight."

The annual Assay Commissioners, appointed by the President, were required to meet annually in February at the Philadelphia Mint "to examine and test . . . the fineness and weight of the coins reserved by the several mints for this purpose."

In addition to the records of the Commission described below, other records relating to the Annual Assay Commissions are among headquarters records of the Bureau of the Mint, which are described in a later section of the inventory.

MINUTES OF THE ANNUAL ASSAY COMMISSIONS. 1841-73. 2 vols. 2 in. 25

Arranged chronologically. For letters received from 1879 to 1918, relating to appointments to the Commissions, see entry 277.

RECORD OF GOLD AND SILVER COINS RESERVED FOR ANNUAL ASSAY. 1817-38. 1 vol. 1/2 in. 26

A record of coins received from the Chief Coiner of the Philadelphia Mint. The entries in the volume identify deliveries by quantity and type of coins received. The entries are arranged chronologically.

RECORD OF COINS RECEIVED FROM BRANCH MINTS FOR THE ANNUAL ASSAY. 1840-72. 2 vols. 2 in. 27

The first volume constitutes a record of gold coins received from the branch mint at Dahlonega, Ga., 1840-50; and the second, a record of silver coins received from the New Orleans Branch Mint, 1840-51. The entries in these two volumes identify deliveries by type of coins concerned. The third volume, which also includes a letter of January 23, 1855, from the Secretary of the Treasury to the Director of the Mint regarding the Assay Commissioners, constitutes a record of deliveries of coins from all the branch mints for the annual assay. The entries in the first two volumes are arranged chronologically; those in the last volume are arranged by branch mint and thereunder chronologically.

Records of Assays, 1795-1906

These records relate to assays of coins, to metals destined for coinage, and to samples of ores deposited; they do not, however, include records relating to the annual assay of coins.

RECORDS OF BRANCH MINTS AND ASSAY OFFICES, 1835-1942

Records of the Charlotte, N.C., Branch Mint, 1835-1913

The branch mint at Charlotte, N.C., was established on March 3, 1835. Operations began in December 1837 but were suspended from 1844 to 1846 after a fire at the mint. Coinage was resumed in October 1846 but was again discontinued in April 1861, when Confederate troops took possession of the building. The mint remained in operation throughout most of 1861, with salaries being paid by the State of North Carolina. The mint was examined by representives of the Federal Government in the fall of 1865 and some appointments to positions were made in the same year. Operations were not resumed, however, until March 1868. No coining was done, but the office was used for making assays. By a law of February 12, 1873, the mint at Charlotte officially became an assay office. The office was discontinued in June 1913, since Congress did not make an appropriation for it.

INTRODUCTION

The Mint of the United States was established at Philadelphia, then the National Capital, under an act of Congress approved April 2, 1792. When the seat of Government was removed to Washington the Mint, under the supervision of a Director appointed by the President, remained in Philadelphia. In the early years of the Mint's operation the Director sent his annual reports of the activities of the Mint to the Secretary of State for transmittal to the President. In an interim period during which the Secretary of State gradually ceased to have responsibility for the superintendence of the Mint and the Secretary of the Treasury gradually assumed control, the annual reports were transmitted direct to the President. By 1835 the supervision of the Secretary of the Treasury over coinage and related operations appears to have been complete, although annual reports continued to be rendered to the President until 1857. Since that date the reports have been made to the Secretary of the Treasury.

An act of March 3, 1835, authorized the establishment of branch mints at Charlotte, N. C.; Dahlonega, Ga.; and New Orleans. The Director of the Mint at Philadelphia, or the United States Mint as it was generally designated, was given supervision over the branch mints and continued as Director of activities at the three original branch mints and at assay offices and branch mints later authorized until the Bureau of the Mint was established in the Treasury Department on April 1, 1873, by an act of Congress approved February 12, 1873. This act provided that the head of the Bureau be designated the Director of the Mint and have control over all mints and assay offices.

A Congressional Act passed September 30, 1850, provided for the appointment of a United States Assayer for California. The act also directed that contracts be made by the Treasury Department, with well established assaying works for assaying gold and forming it into bricks and ingots under the supervision of the Assayer.

In his first message to Congress on December 6, 1850, President Millard Fillmore drew attention to the fact that the miners in California were subject to heavy losses due to the large discounts which they had to take on their bullion and recommended that a branch mint be established in San Francisco. Little metallic money circulated in California at this time and the volume was not sufficient to meet the abnormal demands caused by the rapid growth in population. For a considerable period of time, gold dust was the accepted medium of exchange and, to offset this wasteful and inaccurate standard, mint receipts were issued which, "having all essential requirements of coin," were accepted for public dues until issuance of further receipts was prohibited by Congress.

On April 9, 1852, the California Legislature petitioned Congress to establish a mint in San Francisco and on July 3, 1852, $300,000.00 was appropriated for that purpose. This appropriation made no provision for a site, so a contract was made with a private firm, Curtis, Perry and Ward, to do the minting. On April 15, 1853, this minting establishment and a lot located at 608 Commercial Street between Montgomery and Kearney Streets were purchased for $239,900.00 and on July 6, 1853, additional adjacent ground was purchased for $15,000.00. Extensions costing $28,900.00 were made to the original building and when completed, the new mint was approximately sixty feet square and three stories high. The mint was completed with twenty-five employees and the first gold dust was received on April 3, 1854. The charge for assaying, refining, and coining bullion was one and one-tenth percent as against seven-eighths of one percent which was then charged by the Philadelphia Mint.

The peak of California gold production appears to have reached its height in 1853 during the period of the establishment of the San Francisco Mint. In 1853, domestic gold deposited in the Philadelphia Mint amounted to more than two-thirds the entire amount of the four-year period following establishment of the San Francisco Branch Mint. For the year 1853, over 52½ million dollars worth of California gold was deposited at the Philadelphia Mint. By 1857 it dropped to one-half million, while at San Francisco it amounted to 12½ million. Until the Coinage Act of 1873 this mint was a branch of the Philadelphia Mint, although the San Francisco output exceeded that of the Philadelphia plant.

The Mint Service, a term often used to include all institutions concerned with mint activities, gave the Philadelphia Mint the responsibility for a new function provided for in an act of January 29, 1874. This was the execution of coinage for foreign governments, a function that is also performed at the San Francisco Mint.

Although the mint was originally planned for an output of approximately $2,500,000.00 a month, a total of $71,909,473.00 worth of monies was coined from 1854 to June 30, 1857. The building was poorly designed, limited space made it difficult to operate efficiently and it was necessity to close the mint temporarily several times and to rearrange the interior so as to provide for greater production.

After the discovery of silver mines in Nevada, the output continued to increase and in 1864, Congress appropriated $300,000.00 for enlarging the mint. It was decided to erect a new building and on March 7, 1867, $100,000.00 was appropriated for the purchase of ground 250 feet square at the northwest corner of Fifth and Mission Streets. The building was commenced in 1869 and completed and occupied in 1874. The total cost was $2,130,512.00. Upon occupancy of this building the former Mint on Commercial Street was reconstructed at a cost of approximately $170,000.00 and the building was used as a sub-treasury.

The present Mint building, located at Buchanan and Duboce Streets, was begun in August 1935. The cornerstone was laid July 28, 1936; the building was dedicated May 15, 1937, and occupied in September 1937. The first coin was struck September 22, 1937.

Coinage stopped at the Mint on March 31, 1955, but the institution continued to operate as an assay office. Public Law 87-834 of July 11, 1962, changed its official designation from mint to assay office. Coinage operations in San Francisco, authorized under the Coinage Act of July 23, 1965, began September 1, 1965. The official title of the installation is still United States Assay Office.

This inventory describes approximately 220 cubic feet of records of the United States Mint and United States Assay Office, San Francisco, received by the Federal Records Center, San Francisco, in three accessions in 1953, 1955, and 1966. They are a part of Record Group 104, Records of the United States Mint.

Preliminary Inventory of the Records of the Bureau of the Mint

(Record Group 104)

Compiled by

This inventory has been reproduced in this form by the Editorial Division in order to make it readily available for staff use. It has not been distributed as a National Archives publication.

NOTES:

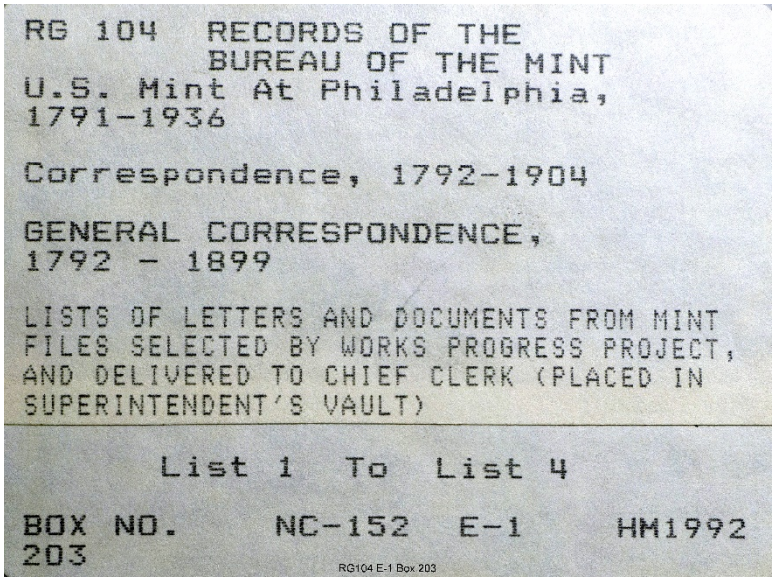
The current Finding Aid for Record Group 104, United States Mint, is the "Preliminary Inventory of the Records of the Bureau of the Mint" compiled by Forrest R. Holdcamper, January 1968, as identified on the cover page.

The final 26 pages of this Finding Aid consist of degraded photocopies of several hundred documents that were collected at the Philadelphia Mint by WPA employees sometime before October 12, 1936, and later compiled by L. J. Holverstott (May 1, 1947). Almost all of the listed documents are of a general correspondence nature and would be expected to be at NARA Philadelphia in RG104 Entry 1 "General Correspondence, 1792-1899." However, they have not been found.

Researchers in RG104 have long wondered if these documents were at the Philadelphia Mint, on rotating display at some Government building, or possibly lost. Inquiries of NARA Archivists were unsuccessful.

In an attempt to locate these documents, the writer made a complete transcription of the 26 page list at the end of the current Finding Aid. Although many entries were nearly illegible, the writer matched key words and names against the writer's database of digitized RG104 documents. This resulted in cross matches of identical or similar documents (by date, subject, correspondents) that had been misfiled.

The result is that the writer discovered that almost all of the documents exist. They were returned to Philadelphia NARA RG104 E-1, but not refiled in chronological order. Instead, they were put into file boxes #203, 204 and 205 and "added" to the end of the long run of Entry 1 "General Correspondence, 1792-1899" with only an obscure box label to identify them. The label is reproduced below.



The following transcribed document list duplicates pages 202 through 227 in the current Finding Aid. Most of the original documents and a partial typescript list are in RG104 Entry 1 Box 203 (the majority of documents), and Boxes 204 and 205 at NARA Philadelphia.
